PRICE TWO CENTS.

PRIZE-WINNING ESSAYS ON DRESS UP WEEK

Awards Made by Committee to School Pupils for Best Essays—The Papers That Won the Prizes Show Excellent Work and Praiseworthy Condensation.

The Chamber of Commerce Dress-Up Week Committee, at the beginning of the Dress-Up Week campaign, offered six prizes for the three best essays by pupils of the high school, and the best essays by pupils of the graded schools and parochial schools of the city. The prizes were awarded on Friday were distributed by Superintendent M. J. Michael. At the high school the prizes were given out at assembly; the first prize being $5, the second, $3, and the third, $2. During the day, Superintendent Michael visited Schools No. 7 and No. 4, and presented the prizes to the winners in those schools. There the first prize was $2.50, the second, $1.50, and the third $1.

Strangely to say four out of the six prizes were awarded to boys, and one cannot but suspect that the Boy Scout training in quick and accurate observation had something to do with the winning of the prizes. The statement by the committee, and the prize winning essays here follow:

Leventhal's "Dress-Up" Window.

Behold the furs of the Hudson Bay in Kingston! "Dress-Up" week has produced many striking displays, but for originality and yet strict adherence to their own business, few equal that of Leventhal Brothers on Wall street.

Within the window, and occupying most of the space, is a hut, about six feet high, three broad and two deep. It is entirely covered with raccoon skins, overlapping like shingles for protection against the elements. Above the entrance to the hut are crossed the flags of America and Britain, signifying the close connection between the two, and our intimate relations with Canada, the greatest trading and fur-trading country on earth. The floor, both inside the hut and out, is covered with skins of the same animal; to the right, on the wall, hangs the pelt of a beautiful silver fox, and on the other side are three skins of that wildest of forest creatures, the red fox. Near the entrance to the hut, on a small log, a raccoon snarls his defiance, and invites any animal, or man for that matter, to come on, if he dares. And something in his whole manner seems to exhibit an utter contempt for all things human, and the bold challenge of the forest, where only the fit exist, and there is no room for weaklings or cowards.

Second Prize.
The Spring Morning.
When one goes along Wall street near the store of L. R. Van Wagonen Company, he is attracted at once by a shimmer of beauty and color which immediately arouses all the curiosity in him. This window is so different—why? To me the suggestive, it is the attractive feature. As one stands in front of the store window, he immediately imagines himself in a park, looking toward a gateway of a white lattice pattern, arched over with a magnificent rambling rose, with all its glory with roses. The lady of fashion, exquisitely dressed in a beautiful, salmon colored, silk dress, topped by a dark blue coat, with her right hand on the half-open gate, is about to enter the park and join in the promenade of the season. Her friend, clothed in an old rose silk dress and dark blue overcoat, awaits her within the park, while a little boy is playing about, armed like a Jolly Jack-an-Box. On either side of the gateway without the park are beautiful green plants, suggesting the ever-living Easter-lily. At one's feet, the use of the lily pond, containing three most fragrant water flowers, and the nature's carpet of verdure. The sun-dew birds and the rabbit with her young hares, looking like little and young hares, are an ever-

THE KAISER MAY BE TRIED FOR 30 CRIMES

List of Offenses Made Up in Paris Make Him the Champion Defendant in the World's History.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, April 12.—No defendant that was ever arraigned before a tribunal of justice was ever accused of more crimes than William Hohenzollern, the ex-king of Germany, will be if he is placed on trial in one of the Allied countries charged with war responsibility and its attendant horrors.

No fewer than thirty varieties of crime are enumerated in the list compiled by the sub-committee of the commission on war responsibility in Paris. These crimes will blacken the name of Germany and her accomplices for many years to come.

One of the main features is the diversity of the charges, reaching out into every branch of culpability. The list, as received from Paris, follows:

- 1—Massacre of civilians.
- 2—Putting to death of hostages.
- 3—Torture of civilians.
- 4—Starvation of civilians.
- 5—Rape.
- 6—Abduction of girls and women for purposes of enforced prostitution.
- 7—Deportation of civilians.
- 8—Internment of civilians under brutal conditions.
- 9—Forced labor of civilians in connection with military operations of the enemy.
- 10—Usurpation of sovereignty during military occupation.
- 11—Compulsory enlistment of soldiers among inhabitants of occupied territory.
- 12—Pillage.
- 13—Confiscation of property.
- 14—Exaction of illegitimate or exorbitant contributions and requisitions.
- 15—Debasement of currency and issue of spurious currency.
- 16—Imposition of collective penalties.
- 17—Wanton destruction and destruction of property.
- 18—Bombardment of undefended places.
- 19—Wanton destruction of religious, charitable, educational, and historical buildings and monuments.
- 20—Destruction of merchant ships and passenger vessels without examination and without warning.
- 21—Destruction of fishing boats and of a relief ship.
- 22—Bombardment of hospitals.
- 23—Attack on and destruction of hospital ships.
- 24—Breach of other rules relating to the Red Cross.
- 25—Use of deleterious and asphyxiating gases.
- 26—Use of explosive and expanding bullets.
- 27—Directions to give no quarter.
- 28—Jail-treatment of prisoners of war.
- 29—Misuse of flags of truce.
- 30—Poisoning of wells.

A Dress-Up Window.

Among the most attractively dressed windows, the one which appeals to me most is the window of E. Winters Sons on John street. This is the one on the left hand side of the door leading into the stationery department. In this window there are eight cunning Kewpies each in a different costume.

The Kewpies stand on separate pedestals which are covered with white crepe paper. The pedestals are placed so forming a semi-circle. The first Kewpie is a blushing bride. She wears a red veil and carries a bridal bouquet. The next fair maid wears a red sash and a dainty red hat. She also has an enormous diamond ring. Then comes another Kewpie cunningly dressed in a gingham apron and a dusting cap with her flaxen braids hanging over her shoulders. The next Kewpie is the one which delights the little boys. He is an Indian chief. He wears feathers, beads and other things the Indians wore. A glance at the next one tells us that she is a ballet dancer. In dainty skirts and hat of red tulle. The next Kewpie is prettily garbed in an old rose colored dress and turban to match. Then comes a soldier, not a German soldier but an American soldier. He wears an overseas cap and a soldier's belt. He also wears on his wrist a tin wrist watch. In the center of this pleasing reminder is another Kewpie. This one, because of his small black cravat, black derby he wears and the cane he carries. He holds in his hand a leash to which a tiny black and white dog is fastened. Besides these Kewpies there are a number of fine books for the little children in this window.

Messengers of Springtime.

In the course of each year, the world renews itself. So with the coming of Spring, the Kingston merchants decided that, like the butterfly, they, too, would emerge from the chrysalis, winter, and appear in the brightness of a "Dress-Up Week." And so, on Friday evening at seven o'clock, the fire bells, the progress-strikes of business men unveiled their windows to the gaze of the admiring populace.

Perhaps, the prettiest of them was "Messengers of Springtime" in the left hand window of the Columbia Music Shop. In this window, the Queen of Spring is represented by a large doll dressed as a vixen. (Vixen is in French, "messenger" as they say in the old country.) She is dressed in a very rich color which is the color of Spring skies; and is seated on a throne of gold which sits the sunbeams of April. Her crown is studded with gold stars leading to the throne. Above the queen hangs a sign in purple and gold bearing the legend, "Easter Music." This sign has a bunch of violets at the bottom. The Queen is surrounded by violets, and the scene is covered with them. The bottom of the window in front of the throne is green, the color of explaining, "My, how pretty!"

DINNER IN HONOR OF LIEUT. DITTUS

Kingston Officer Guest of Honor at Banquet Given by Arthur W. Frohlich on Friday Evening.

Arthur W. Frohlich, of No. 288 Washington avenue, tendered a complimentary dinner in honor of Lieutenant Rudolph C. Dittus, Company I, 108th Infantry, 27th Division, Friday evening at his home. Plates were laid for fifteen guests. The favors were miniature flower pots filled with chocolate. The evening's program was opened by Mr. Frohlich, who gave a brief sketch of Lieutenant Dittus' movements since he left Kingston with Company M in the Mexican crisis, following which the "Star Spangled Banner" was sung by the guests and the dinner served. Lieutenant Dittus was a member of Company M for about sixteen years, and a member of The Freeman force for about seventeen or eighteen years. The following fine menu was served.

31,000 SOLDIERS DUE NEXT WEEK

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 12.—More than thirty-one thousand American soldiers are scheduled to arrive in New York aboard twenty-five transports during the coming week according to figures given out today by Port of Embarkation officials. Five other transports will dock at other Atlantic ports with nearly seven thousand additional troops, bringing the total arrival on the Atlantic seaboard for the week up to 38,000.

The Kaiserin Augusta Victoria and the Graf Waldersee, two ships recently taken over from Germany, will be among the arrivals. The former vessel will bring back 2,319 officers and men including the 64th Field Artillery Brigade Headquarters, 141st Field Artillery complete and Base Hospital Units Nos. 10, 14, 23, 26, 31, 46, 49, 70 and 72, and 500 nurses. The contingent is under the command of Brigadier General Ira A. Haynes, of the 64th Field Artillery. She is expected to arrive Wednesday.

DRESS UP SUCCESS MOST GRATIFYING

Beyond All Expectations of the Most Sanguine Has Been the Success of United Effort by Kingston Merchants.

While there was a lot of enthusiasm over the idea of Dress-Up Week in the very beginning, and while the enthusiasm has kept growing, the entire success of the project has entirely exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the Chamber of Commerce Committee, and Secretary Hudson in its far-reaching success. For it must be understood that while it has immensely livened business throughout the city, and made known to many people who did not know it before that our Kingston merchants are the most progressive and wide-awake of any of the merchants throughout this Hudson Valley, it has done for more than that. From the business viewpoint it has meant the right, not the wrong sort of competition, which does not in any way disagree with co-operation. It has meant increased financial returns. It has meant the gaining of the confidence of the public in the efficiency of our merchants. But it has meant so much more than that.

It has strengthened the sometimes weak notion that it pays to look one's best at all times, not one's second best, or any old way, but one's real best. It has impressed the lesson that while appearances may be deceiving sometimes, after all appearances are a fair guide to the mental state of any man, woman or child, for he who is particular about his looks is pretty sure to be particular and painstaking in his entire life work. It has set many of us to thinking as to the "why" of being dressed up at Easter time, the time of renewed life. Again it has shown many of us that it is a mistake to save the best of our homes for comfort, instead of having the best and finest and freshest in the home, for those nearest and dearest to us.

Sociality and keenness of appreciation have also been increased by this whole Dress-Up-Week plan, which has made so much of calling attention to that which is desirable materially and ethically, and ignoring that which is false or undesirable. To sum up:

There has been more community spirit shown in Dress-Up-Week in Kingston than in any other mode of a community character ever undertaken in our city. Already the city and county are anticipating the Dress-Up-Week of 1920.

Heartiest congratulations to the entire Dress-Up-Week committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

May Symphony Concert.
Leo Herbert, executive manager of the Kingston Symphony Society, is in New York city looking after the booking of soloists for the coming May Symphony Concert, and also for future concerts to be given by the Kingston Symphony Orchestra. The second concert this season will occur the last of May, the exact date soon to be announced in The Freeman. A little later in the season it is expected that the Symphony Orchestra will make a tour of nearby towns, and cities, to which they have already been invited to come. It would be hard to imagine a better advertisement for the progressiveness of Kingston than such a tour of concerts given in the surrounding country, by our efficient and excellent Symphony orchestra.

PEACE TREATY READY WITHIN TWO WEEKS

Unless Unforeseen Obstacles Develop—German Envoys May Sign It Before May 1st—Belgium May Try the Kaiser.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Paris, April 12.—The peace treaty will be presented to the German envoys for their signatures within two weeks unless unforeseen "eleventh-hour" obstacles develop, it was learned from a most trustworthy source today. The treaty is almost ready for drafting right now.

Such rapid progress has been made since Wednesday that the Italian-Jugo-Slav dispute over territory on the Adriatic is now the only important problem on hand. Now that it has been decided that the ex-king can be placed on trial there is much speculation over the steps to be taken to get him out of Holland and the seat of the court where the trial will take place.

It is probable that the former emperor will be arraigned before the high court of Belgium on an indictment charging him with violating Belgium's neutrality and outraging civilized morality. Belgium may be able to avenge her wrongs with her own laws. If this is the case the fact will stand out before the whole world as a lesson to rulers in the future to respect the rights of small nations.

The league of nations, whose constitution has finally been put in shape for inclusion in the treaty, will be the keeper of the world's honor. To it will be entrusted great problems which the peace delegates could not decide off-hand. Thus in the case of the Saar valley it was decided practically to let the league govern the district for fifteen years, while France is getting the product of the coal mines in the Saar basin. After that time a plebiscite will be taken. In this same connection it is pointed out that the Saar Valley is now a complement to the Lorraine iron fields and in all probability a plebiscite would give the territory to France.

It is believed that a thirty mile unarmored zone will be established on the left bank of the Rhine in conformity to the wishes of the French who fear another German attack if that district is left open. The Allied armies, however, will continue to occupy the bridgeheads along the Rhine for an indefinite period.

The Polish question has not yet been solved, but it is now said that the report that the "delegates had reconsidered the question of giving Dantzig to Poland was premature. Strong influences are working in that direction.

Belief is current in some circles that the big four may soon announce a definite policy towards Russia. It is not believed that it will take the form of recognition of the soviet government at Moscow, but will be a formal statement to the effect that, if the Bolshevik regime can convince the league of nations that it represents the Russian people, will not interfere with other forms of government, will preserve law and order and will recognize lawful international obligations, it may, after a time, obtain a serious hearing.

While the big four are working on the plan of a general treaty for Germany, Austria, Bulgaria, and Turkey it is not improbable that, in a final occurs in the settlement of the Adriatic dispute or over the boundaries of Turkey, a treaty may be made with Germany alone. The Italians are opposing this so the question remains open.

Telephone Strike
By Telegram to The Freeman.
Boston, April 12.—The strike voted by upwards of 8,000 Boston and New England telephone operators for next Tuesday to enforce their demands for higher wages, will be merely the forerunner of nationwide strike now scheduled for next month, according to union leaders.

G. M. Bugniet, international vice president of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, in addressing a strike meeting of Boston telephone operators, asked them to take no action at this time. He told them it was not a case of lack of sympathy on the part of international officers but merely a question of union law. He assured the Boston operators that a nation-wide strike would probably be ordered next month.

When the fifty-nine local affiliates of the telephone workers polled an overwhelming strike vote on February 28, this action was endorsed by the international brotherhood of electrical workers. Telephone workers' unions in other sections of the country went on record as favoring a strike. But the international officers found that certain other laws must be fulfilled. Another set of ballots for a referendum vote on the question of special assessments to finance the strike were sent out. It is expected that tabulation of the special assessment ballots will take until May 11. Then it is expected the international will issue its order for a nation-wide strike.

BYRNE BROS.,
Broadway and Henry St.THE SOLDIER'S APPEAL TO REASON

He Wants a Job, Not Charity, Film-Plan, Free Foods, Glory and "Up-lifting" by Professional "Reconstruction" Experts.

The following very pointed article is from "The Cro (It's a Bird)" published at Army Post Office, No. 302, Bourges, France:

So much has been said recently, so much has been placarded in the press of the states about the re-construction and re-adjustment period so much has thus far been done—in the newspapers and magazines, that the most important of the whole "period" has been entirely overlooked.

That personality, the soldier, the private, the salt and pepper of the army.

What will be the ultimate reward of the private?

What reward does the private expect and what can or will he get?

We read in the incoming papers and magazines that a great number of men of prominence and note have suddenly, with the end of the scrap, become spokesmen for the soldiers. Also some ladies of fame and fortune with a lot of time that they know not what to do with, have taken a hand in the campaign for the soldiers and we read further that these men and women of note and prominence have laid before all kinds of "officials" from a constable in Podunk, to Congressman Hoozils all sorts of suggestions, offering all sorts of ways and means to reward the soldiers. Some of the suggestions are sensible, while the majority are weird, absurd and out of order.

Accordingly, the soldier does not figure to amount to very much, for judging by the printed matter in the newspapers and magazines, depicting, as it were, the wonderful friends and spokesmen for the boys, these patriots who always pretended to be what they are not, the soldier, according to their sense of unreason, need not be consulted, for he does not know very much anyhow, and therefore these benevolent feudalists are pushing their faces to the very front and under a false guise of benevolence, printed patronage and film-fam feelings "for the boys," they pretend to be taking care of the soldiers and promise to see that nothing will be left undone in their behalf and for their welfare and future.

Tommy rot!

Why not put an end now to all these empty glories and stop decorating ones self with medals?

Here is the truth of the situation. Forty thousand men have been laid off in one plant in Connecticut. Every trade in New York city is at a standstill due to strikes. Three hundred discharged soldiers applied for one job at 44 Court street, Brooklyn, N. Y. The job was for a porter at $18 per week.

More than 1,200 discharged soldiers have applied at the government employment office in New York and were told that there were no jobs to be had. Just a moment!

Five hundred soldiers have registered complaints in Chicago that their former employers refused to take the old employees back who joined the colors, owing to the fact that a great many war contracts have been cancelled. The farmers claim that there is an oversupply of farm labor and that it is foolish to promote farming just now because as a last resort to get rid of the obligation due the soldier.

The other cases, from coast to coast and from lake to gulf are too numerous to mention and we will use the above as an illustration picked at random of the exact conditions as they are today.

And we have the great men and women writing articles wherever they could find space; we have many so-called benefactors preaching sermons and delivering dead speeches and gathering the whole theme of their time wasting foolish "for the boys" propaganda. Their main target for their ignorance is that it is all up to the soldier himself.

True indeed! When war was declared it was up to the soldier to fight it. When he was sent to the training camp, it was up to him to make good. When he was sent to France, it was up to him to see it through. When he got to France, he faced difficulties, so colossal, that it defies description, and it was up to him to overcome them. When the order was given to go to the front and teach the war up to the soldier to execute that order. When the command was given to go over the top, it was up to the soldier to go over, and—he did, and it was up to him to win the war and that too he did, and because it was up to the soldier.

Now then, in the name of reason and justice and fair play, is it up to the soldier to go home and find that he has no job, no money, a burden of trouble and no visible means of support for himself and his family? Is it still up to him to be going around and begging some good old ladies of privilege to make an honest living? Is it still up to him to go home and find that he has to start from the very bottom and take any old job so that he will not have to face a critical period for the extreme hardships and adventures he has so willingly and with an honest heart placed at the disposal of his country? Will it be up to the soldier on his return to become a public charge through no fault of his? Will it be up to him to take such a tremendous burden upon himself with no material aid whatsoever from any source? And will it be up to him to look to committees and then some more committees straight in the face and say something like this, "Well, I enjoyed all the painted welcomes you gave me and I sure did like your camouflaged generosity in welcoming me, I will also remember the empty glory, the pomp and all the splendors you have arranged in my behalf. I shall never forget the brass bands, the honors, the heraldry and your great amount of energy that you have contributed to make my home coming so wonderful. But—now that it is all over, now that it is a

MAKE YOUR SHOES
WEAR LONGER

Ten months ago, W. H. Kelley, a lumber salesman of Omaha, had a pair of shoes re-soled with Neolin Soles. Mr. Kelley does much walking and has worn these shoes constantly. He says "they are still good for another ten months of wear."

Good shoe stores carry Neolin-soled shoes in many styles for men, women and children. They cost you no more than shoes that give less wear. Neolin Soles are also available everywhere for re-soles. Remember—these soles are created by science to be what soles should be. They are comfortable and waterproof—as well as long-wearing. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels—guaranteed to outwear any other heels.

Neolin Soles

thing of the past and I must eat and sleep and take care of my family, how about a job?"

Will the answer be it is up to you to find one?

Dead sure! One hundred to one it will be the exact answer.

And here is the logic. The soldier does not want honors, he does not care to be heralded as an angel or saint. The soldier from the minute he donned the uniform, was serious of the task in front of him. It was his duty to uphold the traditions of his great and glorious country, his flag his president and the people of his land. He has done that, done with a heart and soul; he has made the sacrifice, the small, great and supreme, and now his job is done and all he wants is a square deal.

He wants a job where he may feel that it will develop into a future. He wants a lucrative job where he may provide for his dear ones and cause them to be happy. He wants to work, to resume his moral duties to himself and family and society at large. That's what is in his mind just now and as much as he will appreciate the great welcomes with the brass bands and the acclamations of his fellowmen, he will not lay too much stress on such camouflaged and useless enterprises that are merely the smoke from "Uncle Walt's pipe."

That, and nothing else is the soldier's appeal to reason. How his appeal will be answered, remains to be seen, but one impression must be conveyed to the people back home, that the soldier will consider his reward in the form of a good job. The soldier expects a good job as his reward and that's all he wants to get.

It is a sensible appeal, a reasonable appeal and the most honorable appeal to be answered.

Objects of Cultivation.

In urging the proper tilling of the soil, the New York state college of agriculture points out that cultivation has three main objects: Killing weeds, loosening the soil, and saving moisture; under New York conditions, further, this is said to be probably the order of their importance.

Weeds must be kept down and the earlier they are disturbed after the germination the easier they are killed. The critical time is the period between planting and the time when the crop is large enough to cultivate without covering the plants.

For corn and potatoes, the tillage with the harrow or weeder is likely to be the making of the crop so far as cultivation is concerned. The start the crop gets on the weeds is likely to be maintained, especially in the rows.

Assuming good fitting of the soil and a reasonably good tillage, two inches is the maximum depth of cultivation desirable. Greater depth is likely to stimulate weeds by bringing up more seeds.

Loosening the Soil.

Under conditions in New York, in spite of good fitting, the soil may be poorly aerated and the germination of seeds and the development of the roots hindered. Deep cultivation, therefore, is best practised while the plants are young. Under such conditions, it loosens and aerates the soil; but one should be conservative in the practice.

The dust mulch, it is well known, conserves moisture. There are times when tillage for this purpose determines the yield of crop. Under any but extremely dry conditions, mere scraping of the surface of the soil seems to be sufficient.

For the lighter soil free of stones, the flat blade, or thistle cutter, type of shovel is best. On stony soil the small triangular flat-working cultivator with many teeth in a row is considered preferable.

Wyoming Led All States.

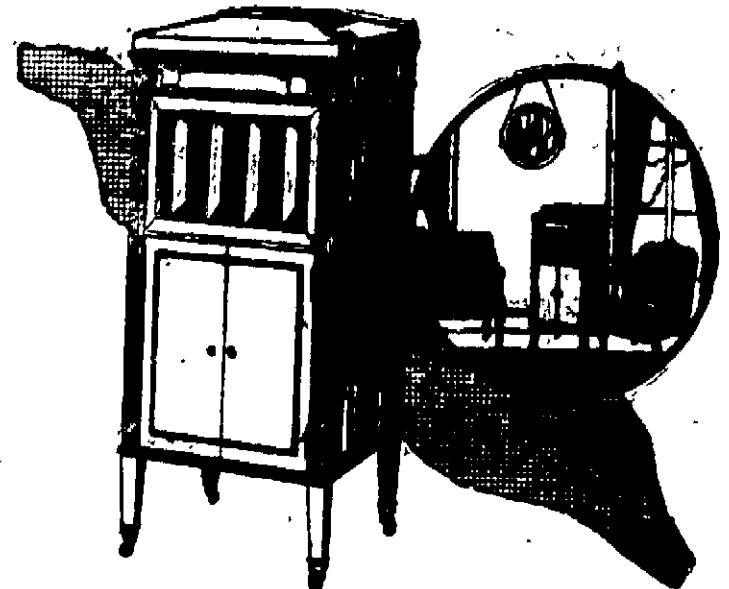

Women acted as jurors in America almost half a century ago. The first grand jury which included members of the "weaker" sex was impaneled at Laramie, Wyo., 48 years ago. The territory of Wyoming was organized in 1890 out of part of Dakota, Utah, and Idaho, and one of the first official acts of the new territorial government was to grant women the right to vote and hold office.

The Stroller Hears Some Folks Work Just to Make a Living, but They are Not the Ones Who Make a Real Success in Life.

"Have you ever stopped to think of the fact?" asked the customer suddenly as he dropped The Freeman he was reading.

"What fact?" asked the busy barber as he paused in taking his weekly inventory of tobacco on hand.

"The fact that we have known each other for a good many years now, and while we have not always agreed on every proposition we have never got into an argument over religion," explained the customer.

"And the answer to that is very simple," replied the barber, "for what would be the use of you and I scrapping over religion when your church and my church will be in existence and still doing business long after you and I have kicked up our toes and been planted."

"That's so too," agreed the customer thoughtfully. He added, "How did you ever come to take up the barbering business?"

"I always had a liking for the business ever since I was knee high to a grass hopper," explained the barber, "and when I got old enough I got busy and learned the trade."

"There is no question that a man to make a success out of a job has to like his work," said the customer.

"You said something then," replied the barber, "for there are a lot of people in this world who are just working to make a living for themselves and family."

"What would that indicate?" asked the customer.

"That they were either lazy, or more likely had a job for which they were not cut out, and so had no real liking for," replied the barber, "and the best thing they could do would be to find out the kind of work they really cared for and then try and land a job at it."

PRIZE SPEAKING AT HIGH SCHOOL

Dorothy Brown, Harry Madden,
Frances Harder and Fred Merritt Winners of the Prizes Offered for Best Speaking.

Friday night in the High School Auditorium the first prize speaking contest in the history of the school took place. Prof. C. E. Bennett of Beacon High School, was chairman of the judges' committee, and was ably assisted by Principal A. W. Bennett of the New Paltz High, and Miss Jackson, acting principal at Catskill High. The task entrusted to these three people was unusually difficult, but they rendered their decisions in a manner pleasing to all. Dorothy Brown and Harry Madden received the first prizes of $10 each. Frances Harder and Fred Merritt received the second prizes of $5 each. The work of these four pupils is to be greatly commended. Of course, the night being very bad, there was not a very large crowd. This made the speaking much more difficult than if there had been a larger audience to encourage the orators.

Those people who were not afraid to brave the rainy weather to come out heard something worth while. The majority said that they would not have missed it for anything. This is a new thing for K. H. S. K. A. and U. A. had contests in the opera house and they used to turn people away, there was such a crowd. Times have changed, but there are no reasons why the High School Auditorium should be filled to overflowing at such entertainments. "Wake up, the Hill" was sung by the Boys Kingstonians! Put your wonderful new high school on top. The building is the best in this part of the state and all the people in the city should boost it to the first place. The students are a lot of boys and girls full of life, ambition and are ready for anything put before them. There are to be more of these contests in the future and all they ask is your most hearty support and cooperation in every way possible. Brace up, Kingston, and realize your duties to the school.

At 8 o'clock the big green curtain slowly opened in the middle, drawing to the sides. This disclosed a group of fifty young girls clothed in spotless white. It was certainly a beautiful scene. Miss Phillips, the director, then stepped out into the middle of the platform, followed by Miss Miriam Pitts, the pianist, and James Carey, the violinist, of the evening. Taking their places, the music began and the auditorium was filled with the sounds of the chorus singing, "Love's Old Sweet Song." This is an old song, familiar to nearly everyone, and all enjoyed it.

"America's Greeting to Italy," written by Hamilton Holt, delivered in a stately manner by Ralph Miller. Nancy Judkins followed with her selection, "The Boy" by Chester Farnold. She showed that she had a very broad knowledge of the principles of oration.

"To France," a patriotic war oration, written by Frederick Couderc, was given by Virgil DeWitt. He showed much ability and live interest in his topic.

Charlotte Cranford's oration, "Vive La France," was rendered by Eleanor Kerr in a pleasing manner. Next came a right on the minute K. H. S. K. A. and U. A. topic, "Servants of Their People" by Woodrow Wilson and recited by Fred Merritt. This was the great speech which our noted president gave in Boston on his return from why the High School Auditorium should be filled to overflowing at such entertainments. "Wake up, the Hill" was sung by the Boys Club Quartet. Glenford Kraus, pleased the audience very much with his part. As an encore they sang an enjoyable parody.

Frances Harder then told of "The Last Class" written by Alphonse Daudet. Her manner and delivery won her second prize which she certainly deserved.

Our late Ex-President Roosevelt's last speech was given by Joseph McDermott. He brought out the wonderful thoughts enclosed in the speech in a clear cut manner.

The last oration of the evening and the first prize selection was given by Dorothy Brown. She chose Victor Hugo's interesting story known as "Jean Val Jean and the Bishop." It was told in a very expressive manner.

These people who have spent their valuable time on this work feel greatly rewarded. However next time they hope for better support.

The Boys' Glee Club sang "The Americans Come," a French piece in a style which drew much applause. "The Storm Fiend" sung by the mixed chorus, ended the events of the happy evening.

The prizes were awarded by Prof. C. E. Bennett, who spoke very highly of the ability of the speakers. He regretted to find only four prizes instead of the ten there should have been. In his opinion, each orator deserved a reward.

Miss Phillips has worked very hard in training the Glee Clubs, but her work has not been wasted. Both clubs showed exceedingly well, the training which they had received and the way that they had been taught to use it.

Miss Mary Noone, English instructor in K. H. S. trained the speakers and deserves a great deal of credit for her efficient work in this line.

Remember, you will be given another opportunity to hear these speakers again in the near future. Don't let an opportunity of value go by without a grab at it.

by Elsa Stern. This is one of Mary Shipman Adams's pieces. Miss Stern exhibited a wonderful command of the English language for one who has come here but a few years ago and started at the bottom. She is to be complimented on her correctness and bearing.

WINDOWS OF THE WOMEN'S EXCHANGE

(Contributed.)
Among discriminating people who appreciate the unusual in hand-made articles, there was no window during Dress-up Week that attracted more admiration than the Main street side of the Women's Exchange.

In this window is an exhibition of the beautiful flax lace pieces of which the Exchange has a special Easter showing. Pillow cases, tray cloths and napkins are there, and some rather unusual long pieces, perfectly stunning, for runners.

If you haven't seen this flax work and are planning an Easter gift, don't fail to look it over.

There are other Easter novelties to be found there too. Very fetching, decorated work bags are artistic and different, and several hand-tooled leather pillows are attracting attention.

A tray for the porch table makes an interesting gift and there are lots of summery articles that will surprise you.

Did you notice the Clinton avenue window? A stunning pair of antique andirons invite notice, as do the hand-branded rugs like our grandmothers used to make, patchwork quilts and other old fashioned things of which the Exchange makes a specialty.

Did you ever know that you could have your counterpane recovered at this shop? That you can get home-made jellies and preserves there now that your stock is running low? Did you know we sold eggs?

Have you tried the potcheese, fresh every day?

Have you looked at the baby garments?

Do you need an oil painting? What about a pie? Or sponge cake? You never tasted anything better than our raisin bread.

Come in and get acquainted with us and our things.

Take Off the Shine.

Many a woolen garment has been cast into the discard because it was so shiny it was no longer presentable. Yet many times it is possible to remove the shine so that considerably more service can be had from the garment. There are some methods suggested by the Home Economics workers at the New York state college of agriculture:

Press the wool material on the right side through a wet woolen cloth. The nap of the pressing cloth will pull up the nap of the material being pressed if the nap has not been entirely worn off.

Some persons substitute a piece of crumpled paper for the woolen pressing cloth suggested above.

Others use a cotton cloth and iron until the pressing cloth is dry. They then wet the cloth again and rub the wool quickly over it. This last operation removes the shine by steaming, but if properly done does not take out the press.

Brushing the cloth vigorously with a stiff brush will sometimes remove the shine.

Shingles for
An excellent low key has been used in building a new of shingles here. They are a space between square grooves and flatness. These shingles are more and more being used in building houses and also in other better.

CHURCH OFFICIALS DINE WITH PASTOR

Elders and Deacons of the Fair Street Reformed Church of the Rev. F. B. Seelye at the Stuyvesant.

The annual meeting of the consistory of the Fair Street Reformed Church was held Friday evening at the Stuyvesant Hotel at 6 o'clock. Following the short business session the churchmen were served with a full course dinner in one of the private dining rooms of the hotel as the guests of their pastor, the Rev. Seelye. Both the members of the old and new consistory were present, forming a farewell for the outgoing and a welcome to the incoming officials.

The report of the church treasurer, Henry J. Darrow, was exceptionally gratifying, showing the church entirely out of debt with a large sum as a balance to start the new church year. This is the first time in the history of the Fair Street Reformed Church that such a report has shown every bill paid and a balance to start a new year.

The church of Pastor Seelye included Elders William S. Newkirk, James V. Van Kuren, and William H. Cornell and C. A. Davis, whose terms as elders expired the first of April. Deacons William C. Dutton, Arthur Weeks, Morris Davis, Garrett Keator, and Frank Newkirk whose term of office as deacons expired April first.

Following the evening's reception at the Stuyvesant the men attended the regular meeting of the Bible class at the church where William S. Eltinge, who recently was discharged from the U. S. M. C. A. service at Camp Lee, Va., gave an interesting outline of the work of a "Y" secretary in a cantonment.

GIRL SCOUT RALLY A HUGE SUCCESS

Friday night, in spite of the rain, there was a big audience gathered at the army in response to the invitation to the public and the friends of the Girl Scouts and the Boy Scouts to attend the big Girl Scout rally, held under the supervision of Mrs. Munday of the National Girl Scout organization.

The exhibition of what Girl Scouts can do, was greatly aided by the efficient performance of the Boy Scout Drum Corps, which opened the evening's program with the playing of "America." As some 200 Girl Scouts with their captains and lieutenants marched to the big drill hall floor, and some excellent marching and maneuvering. The Drum Corps of 25 Boy Scouts played among other things, and played it very well, "Auld Lang Syne."

The next feature of the program was the salute of the flag and the pledge of allegiance given by the girls in a decidedly soldierly manner. Then came a miniature "community song" given by the girls which was excellent, two or three of the songs being clever "Girl Scout" parodies of popular war songs. At the end of the "Sing" the girls did a little more marching and then dropping to the floor in square fashion, lining and double lining in places, the entire length of the drill shed. It certainly was an inspiring sight.

The first contest of the evening was the Semaphor signal contest, between a group of girls from Troop 1, Commissioner Irving Troop, Captain Case; Troop 2, Captain Hull, and Troop 4, Captain Leighton. The first message, "America Forever," was missed by Troop 1. The second message, "Buy Victory Bonds," was properly received by Troop 1 and almost as well received by Troop 2. The last message, "Do a Daily Good Turn," was received correctly and reported properly in the following order: Troop 2, Troop 3, Troop 1.

A mighty nice piece of work was done by two teams, who gave an exhibition of "First Aid Work." One of the team fell to the floor injured. She was quickly and very tenderly stretched out straight, her arms and feet bound with bandages so as to insure no movement in the carrying; then three of the Scouts knelt and carefully raised the little girl, and the outstretched arms of the girls, and slipped the bandage to them. The wounded girl was then carefully lowered on a stretcher which the four girls lifted evenly carried a set distance carefully and then lowered at what was presumed to be the hospital. In the last lowering care was taken that the head did not hit the floor. With the same care and speed the bandages were all untied and the test was over. According to the referee, Mrs. Eastman and Vrooman, by O'Leary was unable to be present. O'Leary excelled in speed, but both teams were commended upon their excellent accuracy and carelessness of detail.

Then came the fun, and it certainly was some fun, the entire audience going more or less crazy over the "Hairy Day Race." All of the troops entered this contest, with three members from each troop, but all eyes were attracted by the energy and also the handicaps of Troop 4, composed of such little girls that their dancing about in their excitement was like that of fairies, but good healthy, lively ones. This race meant that the girls had to open a suit case, sometimes quite refractory, get out and put on a sweater and pair of rubbers, shut the suit case, raise the umbrella—which for the most of the time just wouldn't go up for the little Troop 4 girls—run carrying the suit case and umbrella, to a goal. Then they had to close the umbrella, drop the suit case, open it, take off the sweater and rubbers, put them in the suit case and close and return to the starting point. Talk about speeding up. It was some stunt and there was a tie which was tried out, the little girls of Troop 4 winning, entirely to the delight and satisfaction of all present, the Boy Scouts doing some lousy rooting for their little sisters.

The last contest was a "Handicap Relay" race participated in by all of the troops. Lined up the leader was given a big, light ball like a football, which holding over her head she passed back to the girl behind her, and so along the line. The last girl holding the ball then ran forward at full speed to the goal, where stood her captain, who swung her around so that she could speed back to her team where she had to turn and again pass the ball over her head as before. Again Troop 4 was the winner.

The program closed with all of the Girl Scouts forming a circle, holding hands and moving around the drill shed, first with a slow dance step, later with arms on shoulders, etc. Finally, the leader, Commissioner Hart, slowly wound up the great circle of lively and happy youngsters, then unwound them, singing as they went. Then massed at the end of the building, they all stood at attention as they sang America. The Boy Scout Drum Corps escorted the victors from the army with their playing of "Auld Lang Syne," and other material music and the evening came to a close. Bert Marcell, acting executive of the Boy Scouts, acted as herald, announcing the events and the results of the contests, also leading the Boy Scouts to their respective places as a drum corps. The officers and members of Kingston Council of the Girl Scouts, Mrs. Munday, who has done such excellent work during the week's intensive training, and talked on all sides upon the excellent showing made by the Girl Scouts of Kingston, and their successful organization to date. May this splendid and wholesome work continue and gradually develop.

THIS IS A DEEP RABBIT MYSTERY

Pat Rabbits Found Dead Without a Mark on Study Showing How It Happened—Rabbit Owners Would Like Mystery Solved.

Without a mark on their bodies showing how they met death the three pet rabbits of the young daughter of Charity Commissioner W. C. Coutant of Foxhall avenue were found dead in the coop in the backyard Friday morning. A board had been torn off the coop. The same condition of affairs existed at the home of William Van Wert of Smith avenue, and Vance Hogan of Smith avenue, whose children own pet rabbits.

The mysterious epidemic of killings seems to be spreading about the city, as other cases are said to exist. In none of the cases are there any marks on the body to show that the rabbits were killed by dogs or other animals. It would seem queer that every rabbit was overtaken by the same disease at the same time, but the deep mystery as to how they met their death is still unsolved.

Those who have lost rabbits are very anxious to know what killed their pets. Mayhew there is some naturalist in Kingston who is able to furnish an answer to the riddle.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Bickman of Blandford and Mr. and Mrs. Elbert F. MacPadden, delightfully entertained at an informal dance at Willwyck Inn on Friday evening. It was a most enjoyable society event.

Daughters of Isabella.

On Thursday evening, Court Santa Maria, No. 164, Daughters of Isabella held their regular meeting at their rooms at the K. of C. Home. After the transacting of important business a delightful social hour was enjoyed. The committee having in charge the social hour was composed of Miss Helen Culloton and Miss Helen Cassey.

Their Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gronemeyer celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Friday evening at their home, No. 81 Browster street, and their children, relatives and friends gathered at the house to help them observe the event. The happy couple were reunited in marriage by the Rev. Fred T. Schroeder, pastor of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran Church on Livingston street. The two bridesmaids were Mrs. Fred Stoetzer and Mrs. Fredricka Bailey, who were the bridesmaids at the wedding fifty years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Gronemeyer were presented with a purse of gold and also received many beautiful floral offerings in commemoration of the event. At a late hour a wedding supper was served. The table was artistically decorated, and handsome favors distributed to the guests. In the center of the table was a large wedding cake with one large yellow candle. During the evening a fine musical program was rendered. Among the out of town guests were their son, Frank Gronemeyer of Brooklyn, and his son, Augustus, and Miss Frances Schaffner, Mr. and Mrs. Gronemeyer have been residents of Kingston for many years and have a host of friends. Mr. Gronemeyer was a contracting carpenter and worked at his trade until he retired from active business life a few years ago. Both he and his wife are hale and hearty, and have the well wishes of all for many more years of happy married life.

ENJOYABLE MUSICAL FOR AUXILIARY

With some ninety members of which number 9 were new members in attendance, the regular meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. held at the association building yesterday afternoon, was a particularly enjoyable one in every sense. The reports as given during the business session, showed the auxiliary in a satisfactory state of progress along all lines. After the business, a musical program, arranged by Mrs. Putnam Cady, and most delightful as to every number, was given. The program was as follows:

Piano Duet—Mazepa. (Arranged by Jackson.)
Mrs. Ford Hummel and Mrs. Putnam Cady.
Violin Solo:
a Serenade G. Tierne
b Melody Charpentier
Mrs. Newton Fessenden, with Mrs. William Jackson at the piano.
Vocal Solo—I Bring you Heartsease.
—Gena Brancombe
Mrs. Ralph Glendinning.
Piano Solo—The Witches Dance
—Mac Dowell
Master Stanley Hummel.
Violin Solo—Cavatina Raff
Mrs. Newton Fessenden.
Vocal Solo—A Dream
—J. C. Bartlett
Mrs. Glendinning.

Piano Duet—Wedding Procession
—Hoffman
Mrs. Hummel and Mrs. Cady.
At the close of the splendidly rendered musical program, Mrs. Charles R. O'Connor, chairman of the social committee, and the members of her committee, Mrs. A. H. Thompson, Mrs. David Terry, Mrs. William S. Eltinge, Mrs. William Niles, Miss Katharine Van Keuren, Mrs. P. C. Weyant, Mrs. Albert Brooks, Mrs. Woolheater, Mrs. Willard Hills and Mrs. Charles Lewis, distributed to each woman present, an Easter card with the request that she very plainly write her name thereon, and then pin the card upon her gown. These cards took the place of a formal introduction, and the cleverness of the idea was quickly demonstrated, for everybody talked to everybody else and there was an amount of sociability most delightful to observe. Before the close of the afternoon, tea and wafers were served.

To Get Rid of Roaches.

The Bulletin of the Chicago School of Sanitary Instruction has been dealing with domestic pests, the latest issue describing a simple and effective way of ridding premises of roaches. Commercial sodium fluoride mixed in equal parts with flour is dusted over places frequented by the insects, or applied with a duster or powder blower. The immediate effect will be noticed that the insects will come out of their hiding places and, after rubbing about in a frantic manner for a time, become paralyzed and soon die.

Thoughtless Reconstruction.

Senator Watson, the head of the committee on reconstruction, said in an interview:

"Hasty reconstruction is apt to be thoughtless and bad. It is like the young drag salesman.

"A lady approached this young salesman, reddened and said: 'My hair is falling out. Can you give me anything for it?'

"'You bet! Sure!' said the salesman, heartily. 'How about this band-jointed hair receiver at one forty-sixer?'

Modern Greek Language.

The language spoken by the educated classes, that used in the newspapers and other modern literature of Greece, differs from the Romic used by the lower classes. The former is distinguished by a greater resemblance to the Greek of antiquity, which renders it easy for anyone who has a satisfactory acquaintance with ancient Greek to read the literary Greek of the present day.

The Aerial Mail

By LYDIA M. D. OWSEL
(Copyright.)

"By and by, Surly, they won't need you nor your Lulu any more. They'll have airships to carry the mail as 'express,' an' then it's 'Old Black Lulu' to the scrap-shop an' you to Highland Park, Surly Simmons. An' I'll be sittin' up in one of them airships, all dressed up in goggles an' gloves an' things, steerin' the aerial mail an' lookin' tony. Aw, say, now, Surly! That bolt like to clip me on the head. Don't be so reckless, throwin' things around like that. As I was sayin'—"

"Shut up, you thick-head, you! You couldn't steer a hand-car. An' there won't be no aerial mail in my time, cub. Let 'em run all they like when I'm under the sod—but not in my time."

But Surly was perceptibly disturbed by the idle banter to which he was being subjected to daily. "Old Black Lulu," officially known as Engine 1448, was his darling. He abhorred electric locomotives, automobiles, gasoline launches, airships—anything and everything that was not run by steam power.

"Old Black Lulu" was good enough for him, he said. "Old Black Lulu" and the "drag" of express and mail cars she carried were good enough for anybody.

Simmons did not know that the big trunkline was already contemplating the building of a few airships for the purpose of conveying mail and express, or his mind would have been more troubled. It was rumored that the Continental Airship company was in the process of formation, and a continental airship line would mean speedy delivery of mail and express, cheaper rates, and, therefore, considerable pecuniary loss to the railroad company. This threatened competition must be met and defeated; so, while Simmons growled and swore, the railroad company planned and experimented.

By and by there came a young Englishman from the other side of the Atlantic, with a little money in his pocket and a grim determination to earn more—much more. By night he dreamed of cogs and wheels and screws and propellers and dynamos and ohms; by day he worked on these dreams and made them come true.

He didn't become famous; he wanted to marry. But he hadn't sufficient money, and so influential friends.

One day his dreams and his labor came to an end. That was the day that his small model of the Fenimore-Stokes airship was finished, tested, and found perfect.

Then Fate brought him into contact with Hendricks, the recently elected president of the Never-Mind-What Railroad company. Hendricks wanted an airship, and Fenimore-Stokes wanted money. Each supplied the other's demand. Fenimore-Stokes sold his patent outright, and went home to Merrick England and his sweetheart.

Hendricks went his way, rejoicing in the knowledge that he had secured the means to combat the Continental Airship company, which was still nonexistent.

The Never-Mind-What company built two large airships after the pattern of the Fenimore-Stokes model, and then hastened to build more, because, firstly, the Continental Airship line had become a reality; and, secondly, because of two daring mail and express robberies which occurred only four or five weeks apart and defied solution.

Five mail clerks and three express messengers had been found dead in their cars, with their skulls crushed. A sixth mail clerk died without regaining consciousness, and a fourth express messenger became so hopelessly insane that no crew could be obtained from his confused, incoherent speech.

All the most valuable express packages were missing, boxes broken open and safes dynamited. In the mail cars not one registered letter or parcel had been overlooked. In both instances, No. 3, drawn by "Old Black Lulu," and with Surly Simmons at the throttle was the train selected by the marauders. It hurt Simmons more than any one knew, but that did not mend matters.

The N.-M.-W. company decided then to convey express and mail by means of the Fenimore-Stokes airships; so they broke a bottle of wine over the gray metal body of the first man-made bird and christened her the "Registered Mail." Simmons still sat on the leather-cushioned seat, his greasy, sullen face transfigured by a triumphant smile.

"Old Black Lulu" was never sent to the scrap-shop. She lies there, at the river-bottom, still "hooked-up," covered with mud and vittage. And Surly Simmons never went to Highland Park, for he lived just long enough to say:

"They can run off the aerial mails they like when I'm under the sod—but not in my time. No, Lulu—old girl—not in our time."

WONDERFUL.

"Lulu" assuredly could run two miles in four minutes; but she sighed, nevertheless, and her iron heart throbbed convulsively.

The "Registered Mail" made three trial trips between her terminals—New York and a town half-way between the Eastern and Western coasts—safely and speedily. On the fourth day she started west with her first cargo of express and registered mail at the rate of three hundred miles an hour.

Only recently had the airship been utilized for practical purposes, and therefore two hundred miles an hour had been the maximum average speed attained. In the matter of speed, as well as safety and simplicity, the Fenimore-Stokes model had proven superior to all competitors. The aviator in charge of the "Registered Mail" boldly asserted that the ship was capable of twice the speed at which she was permitted to travel, but the N.-M.-W. company was content with three hundred miles an hour—content to run a new machine.

two daily through the "Mail" and the "Chicago Express."

Side by side stood "Old Black Lulu" and the "Registered Mail." Side by side stood President Hendricks and Engineer Simmons. The old engineer was no longer surly, but sad. He spoke in a voice half-choked with sobs:

"Your pa wouldn't 'a' done it, Mr. Hendricks. Your pa was a railroad man from 'way-back, an' he wouldn't 'a' done it. You can fire me for that if you like. It's said, an' I ain't a goin' to take it back."

His intense sadness and resentment were almost comic. Hendricks laughed a little and tried to "jolly" the old engineer, but Simmons was in no mood for jesting.

He turned away, oiled the 1448, wiped her carefully with a handful of clean waste and polished her as vigorously and unconcernedly as if the "Registered Mail" were no more than a summer shower.

But Hendricks heard him murmuring once or twice: "They don't want us any more, Lulu! They don't want us any more."

By and by Simmons walked over to the airship and examined her carefully. "No chance of a break-down, I s'pose," he queried hopefully.

"No chance whatever," smilingly answered the aviator. Simmons looked about to see if there was anything with which he could tamper—a bolt he could loosen, or a screw he could remove, but there was nothing. Besides, he would have been detected.

"Electricity, too," he growled. "Gasoline was had enough, but electricity!"

He turned away, and climbed into the cab of 1448. He carried baggage and passenger coaches for the first time in many years, and a feeling of shame stole over him as he gazed at "Old Black Lulu" and the string of cars behind her.

It had all come so "suddenlike." Only a few days ago, it seemed, airships were only toys at which he had laughed. Yet one of these toys had supplanted his "Lulu"—and there she stood, flaunting her triumph in his face—the blue-gray bulk three times as large as the largest-car he had ever hauled and carrying his precious freight—his express parcels—his registered mail!

"Old Black Lulu's" days of glory were over—and so were his! Alas, how bitter!

No, 3 counted off the miles as she always had. "Old Black Lulu" puffed and whistled, and clicked and pounded over the frogs, just as she always had—and, by and by, she started to sing a crazy little song of her own composing:

They don't want me—any more—
They don't want me—any more—
Simmons heard and understood—and answered:

"You're right, old girl. They don't want you any more. 'Lulu' to the scrap-shop, an' me to Highland Park."

In a short time they passed the nineteenth mile-post, and Simmons began to look for the "Registered Mail." Somewhere along the line she would cross the N.-M.-W. tracks, headed directly west. She had no signals to heed, as "Lulu" had, no curves to take or hills to climb; she had it so easy—all plain sailing for her.

She would cross the N.-M.-W. tracks at the bridge, and sail away out of sight before No. 3 could—

"The devil!" The captain, or motor-man, or whatever he called himself, had told him there was no possible chance of a break-down, and yet—

The "Registered Mail" was whirling—swaying—swinging! She was going to drop! Some one had blundered. Simmons was not the man to let a golden opportunity pass. Not he! Swiftly he calculated the distance to the point where the "Registered Mail" would fall, and swiftly he jerked the throttle open wide. Then he "hooked her up"—gave her "the short stroke," and she responded.

"Lulu! Lulu!" he cried. "You go to it, old girl! Work hard now—hard, hard! 'Lulu,' old girl, do your blameworthy! Go to it, Lulu!"

The short stroke was the day for "Old Black Lulu."

MR. SKUNK'S STORY.

"Listen, children and I will tell you a story," said Mr. Skunk.

"Yes, Papa Skunk," they said, "we'd love to hear a story."

Now the little skunks were growing up into big skunks. Their fur was very beautiful, black and white and soft—and their eyes were very soft and sweet looking.

"Do go on, Papa Skunk," they urged.

"You have often heard folks complain of us," said Papa Skunk.

"No, we never have," said the little skunks.

"Then you haven't heard any horrid gossip," said Papa Skunk. "Well, I'm glad to hear that my children don't keep their ears open for gossip, though in this case what is said about us is true. In fact I don't suppose I should call it gossip, for gossip is repeating things one hears and adding to them as a rule."

"How can one add to things one hears?" asked one of the young skunks.

"That gives me great pleasure," said Papa Skunk, "to be asked such a question. It shows that you don't know the first thing about gossip. Ah, my children, it is a bad habit. It makes folks and creatures unhappy. It does no good and it's very silly. It shows creatures haven't enough brains to talk about interesting things, or enough real fun in them to have a good time without talking and adding talk to stories about one's neighbors."

"When one gossips one tells a story about someone and then adds to the story. For instance, if you heard that the Skunk children in the nearest hole to ours quarreled, and then you told someone else you had heard that they quarreled so badly that they actually had fights—that would be gossip. You would be talking about them in the first place unkindly, which would be mean, and when you added to what you had heard you would be doing something very wrong.

"So, my children, I want to tell you never to gossip. And it's very apt to make folks unhappy. It seems so wrong to make any unhappiness we can help. There are enough sicknesses and hurts and troubles and bothers not to help made-up ones."

All the little skunks nodded their heads and said, "Yes, papa, we think so too."

"Well," continued Mr. Skunk, "it is true when folks say we give a most horrid odor when we're frightened. And you all know why we do."

"It's our protection. All animals and creatures must have something to protect themselves with from the outside world, and that is our protection. But when folks say that we're horrid and cross, they are gossiping and adding to the truth an untruth."

"We're very gentle and kindly and would never do anyone any harm. We are afraid of big people and big creatures. We are rather timid and shy."

"We're always been shy," said the little skunks.

"And," continued Papa Skunk, "we give folks several warnings when we are frightened and are going to use our great protection."

"First we tap on the ground with our paws. Then if they don't pay any attention to that we raise our tails as though to say, 'Be careful. We are frightened. And we must look after ourselves.'"

"The next warning we give is to move our tails back and forward, and if folks don't pay any attention and we are still frightened then we—well, we give our punishment."

"Of course if we are frightened very, very suddenly we may not give these warnings because we may not have the time, but we usually do, all right."

"It's not fair of folks to say we're not gentle enough," said the little skunks.

"Ah, that's gossip, m'dears, gossip," said Mr. Skunk, waving his handsome tail, "but now I have told you the skunk's story as told by a skunk."

Swallowed Turkey's Gizzard.
Clarence, aged four, while engaged in picking the "drumstick" of a turkey, partly swallowed one of the tendons which are so numerous in the legs of a fowl, and was nearly choked. The tendon was finally extracted with great difficulty from the throat of the little fellow, when he exclaimed: "Well, I don't blame the old turkey. It's the cook's fault for not taking off its tendons."

Found Economy.
"Just got a telegram from my brother."

"What did he say?"

"He said a thousand times."

"No, I ascertained that I couldn't even afford to write a thousand words."

STATE ENGINEER AND SURVEYOR.

REPRESENTATIVE IN CONGRESS.

BEHIND THE CLOUDS

By CHARLOTTE LONG.

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"Be still, sad heart, and cease repining; Behind the clouds is the sun still shining."

Thus spoke a voice rather severely in Margaret's ear. "Really," it continued, "you ought to be ashamed! You haven't taken one bit of interest in anything since John Stevens went away ten years ago. Then you were the belle of the town, Margaret, and now at thirty-two look at you! Supposing he should come back suddenly; do you think he would be pleased with the present appearance of the girl he used to know?"

"Mary, you're my sister; I suppose you have a right to say such things," returned Margaret wearily, although the bright color flamed in the usually pale cheeks. "John and I loved each other, and if only I knew what sent him away without a word—" "Don't say any more about it," broke in Mary. "I know it's been hard, but you haven't done a thing to make it easier. You must begin now to put the past behind you. Come down to the church tonight—there's a fair, you know—and help me in the apron booth. Wear something besides black and gray—and a smile, too; and now I warn you, if you fail to come I shall trouble you again for a long time."

Mary hustled out rather noisily leaving Margaret alone with her thoughts. Her sister's words had stung, and resentment burned in her breast.

Choosing a simple white dress of soft, clinging material, she looked very lovely as she adjusted the last fold; but the pink in her cheeks cried aloud for a touch of blue. Opening a bureau she deftly fashioned a giraffe for her slim waist, and with a pink rose plucked fresh from the rose vine outside her window, she made her way to the church. Divested of her wrap, Mary came rushing towards her. "Margaret, is it you?" she exclaimed. "You look like a dream." Soon they were stationed behind a mass of aprons of all sizes and descriptions, and Margaret was soon busy, and interested, too. Presently a stranger entered the church vestry. Almost as soon as Margaret had caught sight of him, Mary nudged her and said: "Look! Margaret, there is Mark Andrews. He's been away for years. Poor fellow! he looks sick. How determined he once was to marry you—" Here a customer claimed Mary's attention, much to Margaret's relief.

Sure enough, it was Mark—he was coming towards her now. After a handshake and a brief conversation with the two sisters, he disappeared; but when the evening was over and Mary and Margaret were ready to go home, they were surprised to find him waiting outside the door.

"I have something to say to you, Margaret," he said in a low tone. "I have no objection to Mary's hearing it. I will tell you as we walk back over the old road where years ago we all romped and played together on our way to school. You would always let me carry your books, Margaret, when John wasn't there," he said, as they started forth, "and the idea got stuck in my boyish brain that if he wasn't around at all I might always have the pleasure of serving the little girl of my choice. That idea grew with the years, and while outwardly John and I seemed friends, no one knows how I longed for a clear field in which to press my suit with you."

"It was the winter that John's uncle in the West came home for a visit that I lost all hope and began to get morbid. I could see the love growing steadily between you two, and my heart was as icy in those days as the frozen millpond where we used to skate. I was walking home one evening when John overtook me. 'Hello! Mark,' he said. 'How would you like to go West on short notice with Uncle Bill?' His uncle had received a telegram calling him back at once, and he wanted some young man to go along with him. John had refused to consider going—you can guess why. He was on his way then to you, Margaret. Then and there I played my last card. 'No,' I told him. 'I don't care to go West at present. Margaret has promised to marry me, and our plans for the future are still unsettled. John was too honest to suspect deceit in an old friend. With white lips he asked, 'Is that true, Mark?' and when I assured him that it was, he simply said, 'Good-by, old chap, and the best of luck to you both. I go West tonight with my Uncle Bill.' I tried hard enough to win you after that, Margaret, but I am glad now that I failed, and at this late hour I am trying to make what reparation I can. Before John sailed for France I told him all, and when he comes back he'll come straight to you. He has never ceased to love you; nor have I—it has been my punishment." He turned abruptly and was gone.

Margaret was weeping softly in her own little home when her sister finally came home that night, but they were tears of joy. In her heart she felt glad. Womanlike, she was already planning a wonderful new wardrobe in which black and gray had no part. Throwing open her shutters the next morning she looked out upon a world which seemed to be all blue sky, golden sunshine and pink roses. "Behind the clouds," at last, she thought eagerly to herself as she opened two flower boxes on the window sill and watched for a moment the humming birds flitting in and out among the blossoms below.

"What is your objection to this dress?" asked the man who was hunched over a desk. "I like it," replied the woman. "I haven't the heart to see anybody with children to move into a place that was short of heat as this was last winter."—Washington Star.

BOATING PERMITS ON ASHOKAN RESERVOIR

There appears to be a great deal of uncertainty in the minds of many applicants for boating permits at Ashokan Reservoir concerning the conditions under which boats may be used.

The following statement from the Division Engineer in charge should clear up many of these questions.

The permit issued by the Department of Water Supply, Gas & Electricity (Burginville building, Kingston, N. Y.) covers the right to place and use a rowboat on a designated New York City reservoir.

One permit may cover not more than six persons whose names must be written on the permit. The person to whom the permit is issued will be held responsible for infractions of rules, etc.

The permit should be carried when the boat is in use. A person should not apply for a boating permit unless he intends to place a boat on a reservoir. If he merely wishes to fish from a boat he may go with a friend who has a boat, or may use a friend's boat, provided the owner is willing, and no payment is made for the accommodation.

The renting of boats is strictly prohibited. The city of New York has no boats to rent.

Musicals at Albany Ave. Church.

The ladies of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church have arranged to entertain the public with a delightful musical evening, Friday, April 25, to be held in the church main auditorium. The entertainers for the evening will be Mrs. Royal A. Bristol of Claverack, N. Y., who has already many friends in Kingston, where on a previous occasion she delightfully entertained with her humorous and dramatic readings, impersonations, story telling, and character sketches, and Mr. L. E. Van Sickle, vocalist of note. The tickets are only twenty-five cents and the ladies of the church want to emphasize the fact that the entire performance will be given in the main auditorium of the church, where there will be ample seating room for all.

An Ecopus Corporation.

The purposes of the corporation is to manufacture, purchase, import and sell all kinds of office furniture. The principal office is at Port Ewen, town of Ecopus. The stockholders are Isaac Meyer, Samuel Abramowitz, David Abramowitz, all of New York.

PASSOVER BEGINS
MONDAY EVENING

The Jewish feast of Passover falls on the 15th day of Nisan, corresponding this year with Tuesday, April 15. The celebration begins on the evening of April 14 with sundown. The manner of its observance was determined largely by the Biblical ordinances concerning this feast.
It is to be observed for a period of seven days. Those who cherish customs that originated after Bible times will keep the feast eight days.

The ceremonies are such as are calculated to bring home the historical event which the feast commemorates, namely the new born freedom vouchsafed to Israel after the long period of oppression endured under Egyptian tyranny. The eating of the leavened bread is enjoined a number of times in the biblical regulations touching the observance of the Passover feast. Unleavened bread is characterized as the "bread of affection" and is also referred to in the Bible as the bread that was unleavened because of the enforced hasty departure from Egypt. In post-biblical times the earnest desire to keep the injunctions must scrupulously led the teachers of Israel to enact laws, such as the use of special dishes that had been guarded from contact with leaven and reserved only for the Passover season.

A charming and effective feature in the celebration of the feast is the special Seder service around the festival family board on the first evening of the feast, to which the Orthodox add a second evening. At this family service a special ritual known as the "Haggadah" is read. This ritual contains the story of the redemtion from servitude, certain reflections inspired by the memories of old and certain psalms. This is followed by the festive meal after which Grace is recited. The service concludes with the reading of additional psalms, the recitation of prayers and the singing of time-honored hymns. To this home service stranger and homeless are cordially invited. On the table in front of him presides over the meal are placed objects reminiscent of the ancient servitude and servitude, such as bitter herbs, reminder of the bitter lot of those who toiled in Egypt; a roasted bone, calling to mind the ancient paschal lamb; a roasted egg, memorial of the free will offering that was brought in addition to the paschal lamb; barley and the bowl of salt water, symbolizing the hyssop and its use in the first Passover observed in Egypt, and a confection of nuts and apples to represent the clay which Israel worked into bricks.

The Passover falling at the beginning of spring, had originally a pastoral and agricultural character, which in time was overshadowed by the historical event associated with the feast. Freedom and its obligation is the keynote of the celebration. The Reform synagogues hold special services only on the first and seventh days, while the Orthodox observe also the second day and an additional eighth day.

Services will be held at Temple Emanuel at 7:30 p. m. on Monday and at 10 a. m. on Tuesday. Rabbi Braz will preach on "Liberty and Law." There will be no Sabbath school session on Sunday morning,
April 12.

Man's Ingratitude.

"When upon a time," said Uncle Eben, "there was a fawn that granted a man three wishes. Den do you made a fourth wish and do fairly couldn't grant it? He said was he as used and ungrateful as if he hadn't and was a fawn granted it all."

Power in Gentleness.

Men are led away from thoughtful-ness and a head is put into those which leads them forth easily toward a calm and bright land and they find no more backward and the land may be a little child's—George

BASCH CHARGED WITH LARCENY

Meadow Street Man Arrested on Complaint of Sam Rosen of New York—Harry Hutton's Expenditure—Basch Discharged.

Louis Basch of No. 41 Meadow street, was arrested Friday afternoon by Sergeant Phinney on a warrant issued in New York city charging Basch with grand larceny in the first degree. The complaint was lodged with the New York authorities by Sam Rosen of that city. A New York detective took Basch to New York that evening.

The alleged grand larceny arose over a horse deal in which 11 horses figured. Just what the particulars were was not learned.
Harry Hutton, a former member of the United States navy, was arraigned in police court Friday afternoon, and through his attorney, ex-Mayor W. D. Brinley, entered a plea of guilty to public intoxication and requesting arrest. Judge Schrick imposed a fine of $25, which Hutton paid. Hutton was arrested several days ago for raising a rumpus on the Strand. When arrested he attempted to put up a fight, but was subdued. He has been in trouble several times before.

James Hicks of Hudson street, arrested on a charge of assault in the third degree, was discharged when the complainant, John Ariza, failed to appear in court to press the charge.

50 YEARS IN AMERICA.

Emerick Schilling Celebrates Anniversary of Landing in U. S.

On April 11, 1869, Emerick Schilling of 37 Emerick street landed in this country and since that time has resided in Ulster county. Last night he was invited to go to Marz's Hotel at Lake Katrine to meet some friends. On his arrival at the hotel his son, George, asked him to dinner, where he met all his old friends at the table. A dinner fit for a king was served by Miss Foster Marz. Including chicken and all the trimmings. After dinner speeches were made and a jolly good time started.
The guests all went to the ball room where a fine entertainment was arranged, the talent being C. Gillette at the violin, Percy Street, songs and the whistling. George Schilling in his usual good singing all from Newburgh Claude Conway and Au-drew Schilling furnished the music for dancing. Among those present were Peter J. Barnham and wife, E.
Brettenbecker and wife, Casper Kotter and wife, Myron Schilling and wife, Robert Brown and wife, F.
Brown and wife, Joseph Krieger and wife, Emerick Schilling, Jr. and wife, Andrew Schilling and wife, Mrs. Mary Ketterer, Mr. Chauncey Newburgh, Catherine, Antoinette, Margaret, Marie, Henry and Helen Ketterer, son and daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ketterer, helped the entertainer with songs and dances.
A. H. Cook appeared at the party somewhat later. Mrs. Cook accompanied her husband and was right in with the party in games and dances.
The rain did not keep anyone away and they all stayed until a late hour, when everybody voted the affair a grand success and hoped they would not be kept waiting until Emerick Schilling puts in another 50 years for a repetition of such an enjoyable affair.

of this church together with the election of trustees. Rev. W. W. Sherwood, a former pastor of the church, will be present and give the address.

the state insurance department. The attendance at the church services are increasing and all departments of reading room and the Free Circulating Library of Authorized Christian Science literature which will be located at 44 Main street.

Marine Tips.

Sailors have a curious way of knowing when their ship is approaching land. They go to mother nature for their knowledge. If you are on the ship they may ask you to feel the deck, which is not with clean. Even though the stars are shining clearly, and the sea absolutely smooth, the deck seems as though water had been poured across it. The sailor will then inform you that land is near and be found more than thirty miles from land, so the deck is a good prophet.

Laughter Adds to Attractiveness.

Not only does laughter keep the blood flowing rapidly but it also keeps the face bright, buoyant and carefree.
This proves that you are happy and and and all the reflections in your eyes and face, and your other smiles show your smile and your face about, and altogether you are not only a beautiful, but a beautiful person as a whole of your cheerful nature and well able to bring radiance and cheerfulness into the lives of others as well as into your own.

ed Monday by Board of Public

Diamonds in Shape.

Monday morning the board of public works will start the work of resetting the curb on the Hasbrouck avenue hill preparatory to paving the hill with granite blocks. Last summer one side of the hill was paved, but owing to weather conditions it was impossible to pave the other side, which will be started as soon as the curbs are reset.

The board has also started the work of levelling and rolling the baseball diamonds in McVey's field and at Forsyth Park. The Twilight League will start about June 1. The board is also laying out a new driveway leading off Delaware avenue in-

AMERICA'S IMMORTALS

MATEJ KOCAK, 5th
Sergeant, Company C, 8th Regiment, U. S. M. C.

Sergeant Kocak (deceased) won the Distinguished Service Cross for gallantry in action near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. When the advance of his battalion was checked by a hidden machine gun nest, Sergeant Kocak went forward alone, unprotected by covering fire from his own men, and worked in between the German positions in the face of fire from enemy covering detachments. Locating the machine gun nest, he rushed it, and with his bayonet drove off the crew. Shortly after this Sergeant Kocak organized 25 French colonial soldiers, who had become separated from their company and led them in attacking another machine gun nest, which was also put out of action.

UP TO DATE FABLE OF THE TORTOISE AND THE HARE

By EARL BALDWIN THOMAS.

The race is not always to the swift. Often it is to the thrifty.
A tortoise and a hare were discussing their respective abilities.
"True," said the tortoise, "you can beat me at running, for nature has endowed you with a better method of locomotion. But I can beat you at saving money every time."
"Simpleton," snorted the hare (or whatever a hare does when he wants to display indignation). "I can surpass you at anything, and I certainly can invest my money to better advantage than you. You are too cautious to make a 'clean-up' in Wall street."
"Is that so?" queried the tortoise.
"It certainly is," said the hare replied. "I expect to make a big killing this very day, which will put me so far ahead of you I won't be able to find you. Watch Canary Soup.
Preferred. It's due to rise."
The tortoise, however, departed in the other direction, on his way to a bank.
Five years elapsed before the pair met again. The tortoise, more prosperous than ever, was surprised to note that the hare was wearing a second hand hat, and that he looked very seely.
"Ah!" he cried, "I am surprised to find you out of the running. Didn't your investments turn out all right?"
"No," groaned the hare, "they did not. I was squeezed out of all my cash. But you look like ready money."
"Well," said the tortoise, "while you, my dear hare, were watching Canary Soup, Preferred, Slammer Stamps was watching War Savings Stamps go up. I invested enough money in them to net me $15,000 this week. You know, they paid four per cent. interest, compounded quarterly."
"Food that I was," mourned the hare. "If I had taken conservative advice and bought U. S. S. I could be on velvet, instead of pounding the pavements today! You were right, after all."

The moral to this story, of course, is contained in the first paragraph.

You Know the Tune.

Bring the wagon home, John;
It cannot hold us all.
We need to ride around in it
When you and I were small.
But we've outgrown it now, John;
We wish to travel fast.
So we're here saving Thrift Stamps.
And we've bought a motor car.

THE KITCHEN CABINET
Worry never helps, whether we mix it with forethought or with our retrospect. It hinders clear planning for that which lies before us, and has no power to change that which is past. It is absolutely and always useless.
GOOD THINGS FOR OCCASIONS.
A nice dessert for a choice occasion will be found in the following:
Frozen Pudding.
—Cut in pieces one cupful of candied fruit (cherries, pineapple, pears, and apricots), and soak several hours in orange juice to cover. Make a custard of two and one-half cupfuls of milk, two eggs, a pinch of salt and a half-cupful of sugar. Strain and cool; add one cupful of heavy cream; a tablespoonful of vanilla and freeze. Fill a brick mold with alternate layers of cream and fruit; pack in salt and ice and let stand two hours.
Spiced Cranberry Jelly.—Pick over one quart of cranberries; add one cupful of boiling water and cook until the cranberries are soft. Rub through a sieve and add two cupfuls of sugar, one-third of a cupful of cold water, an inch stick of cinnamon, 24 whole cloves and six allspice. Again bring to a boil and simmer 15 minutes. Add a few grains of salt, turn into a mold and chill.
Browned Cheese Crackers.—Split common crackers, spread with butter and sprinkle with grated cheese, salt and cayenne. Put in a dripping pan and bake until delicately browned.
Somerset Smelts.—Cut five diagonal parallel gashes on each side of six selected smelts; season with salt, pepper and lemon juice and let stand ten minutes. Roll in cream, dip in flour and saute in butter; add to the fat in the pan two tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful of chicken stock, one and one-third tablespoonfuls of anchovy essence and a few drops of lemon juice. Just before the sauce is poured around the smelts add one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley.
Fruit Salad.—Remove the skin, seeds and membrane from one grapefruit and two oranges; skin and seed three-fourths of a cupful of white grapes; add one-third of a cupful of minced pecan meats; mix and arrange on a bed of lettuce. Serve with a boiled dressing and whipped cream.

OUT OF THE STOCKING INTO A BOND

The best story accredited to Sir Ar-ton Webb, president of the British Royal Academy, concerns a politician.
"I wonder what he'll do now?" said
one. "What's the matter with him?"
"He's lost his reason," replied the other. "Oh, that won't matter, so long as he retains his votes!" was the result.
